Chief Guest, Mr. Eisenhower Swaminathan advocated the importance of cultural activities in college life and explained how it would help the students to develop life skills and bring out their hidden talents and showcase them to the society.

Further, he shared his memory back from his college days 50 years ago in 1968 recalling the time when he entered the college gate to acquire his pre-university degree. He felt proud to have a long connection with the prestigious institution. He gave a brief introduction about his current company Saint Gobain India Ltd, its history and the main area of business.

He shared the opportunities available to students in digital world and the growing need to develop new skills. He stressed the requirement of knowledge and qualification in the growing competitive world. Further adding to it, he said that the students need to be more curious and seek knowledge from every nook and corner.

He also stressed the need for innovative thinking by the younger generation of the country. He added that the idea should convince oneself and showcase conviction to others thereby turning the idea into a business plan.

He concluded the speech by emphasizing on the importance of helping the needy, poor and, lower-lane people. He concluded with the quote “ஊரார் பிள்ளையை ஊட்டி வளர்த்தால் தன் பிள்ளை தானே வளரும்”
