(5x2=10)

Man is made up of many qualities, both good and bad, and among the latter is anger. The nature of every human being is such that anything that hurts his sentiments, or goes against his principles, excites his anger. The evil which results from anger is many.

Under its influence a man loses his power of reasoning and judgment. Not being able to keep control over himself when angry, he does not know what he is doing or saying. Under its influence a man so much puts off his balance that he forgets his duty towards his superiors and may even go to the extent of saying things which are extremely insulting to them. When anger gets to the better of man, he is capable of committing worst crimes and there is nothing to be surprized if under its evil influence he commits murder
